

My travel blog about Dornumersiel

Hi guys,

today I'm posting a blog about my last holiday:

The place we were is in the north of Germany at the North Sea, the village is called Dornumersiel; it's near Bengersiel, a popular village there. We went by car and stayed for a week.

Here's a map of all the villages there:

On our first day we looked around in our village, went shopping so that we had something to eat, visited our flat packed our luggage into the cupboards and went to the near-by beach, there was a playground a couple of chairs to sit in in Germany we say “Strandkörbe” to them.

On the second day we took our bikes and rode on a cycle path to Bengersiel and on the way to Neuharlingersiel we were very close to the water on a small hill witch is there along the whole coast it's called “Deich” and here's what it looks like:

By the way, there're lots of sheep on the dykes. They have to be there to make the floor hard so that it won't break. The dyke is very important because of the water that's coming two times a day.

In front of Neuharlingersiel there is a beach bar we knew and there we relaxed a bit. After a couple of hours we rode back home when it suddenly started to rain. This wasn't so nice but we didn't stop. When we were back home it stopped raining, what a bad luck!

After we ate dinner I had to sleep on a couch and my dad was sleeping in a bed. I'm used to sleeping on a couch in holidays.

On the third day we had breakfast and then we went in the other direction of the cycle path. The city we came to was Neßmersiel. Neßmersiel wasn't part of the tourist area and it wasn't so beautiful like Bengersiel so we decided to ride back home. Then we went to the beach by Dornumersiel and spent our day there. On this day I also wanted to go into the water but it wasn't there. It looked like this:

Everything was very muddy and slippery. I knew that at the North Sea we would have times where the water is gone and times when the water is here. So I had to wait a few hours and then I went into the water.

On the fourth day we drove to Neuharlingersiels harbour and looked at all the ships there we also ate an ice cream and looked a bit in the shops there. This day wasn't so exciting like the others. At the evening we decided that we want to go to a bigger city tomorrow, the next bigger city was Dornum so we had a goal were to go.

Like said before on the fifth day we went to Dornum by car. We parked our car in an underground car park and went to the marketplace. At first, we looked around where to go because we didn't know where we had to go but then decided to walk in a random street. At first we visited a clothing shop because my dad liked the jacket which was in front of the shop. Then we went to a book shop there were lots of funny comics but I didn't buy one. Then we went to a restaurant because we were hungry. After that we went to a big shopping mall there were so many shops that we didn't meet all of them.

Then we decided to drove back home but a different way and had dinner at a restaurant. We ate a bread roll with fish on it. Behind the restaurant we saw a mini golf park and looked at it after we ate. It was a bit to late for playing so we planned it for the next day.

On day six we ate breakfast then we stayed a bit at the flat and then we went to Dornum again and played mini golf. It was very hard to hit all the holes but I think I did well. After we had played, we saw another game called "ludo" and we played a round. Luckily I won but it was pretty close till the end. Then we drove back home ate something and started to pack a bit of the luggage into our cases.

On the seventh and last day we packed the rest of the luggage into the cases ate something and then we went back home.

All in all I think it was a beautiful holiday and we had lot of fun there but I'm also happy to be back home again.

Hope you found it interesting.

By Manolo